

Sharon Bradley has been a board-certified infection preventionist since 2000 with more than 20 years experience in infection prevention and control in both acute and long-term care settings. She has also practiced in acute care clinical, risk management, and patient safety roles and in long term care as a clinician, educator and director of nursing .She is currently employed by ECRI Institute as a Senior Infection Prevention Analyst for the Pennsylvania Patient Safety Authority. She is an active member of the Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology (APIC) Delaware Valley Chapter, and has served on the chapter board of directors for 7 years. She led a hospital team awarded the 2008 Hospital and Health sytem Association of Pennsylvania Patient Safety Award for Prevention of Ventilator-Associated Pneumonia. Sharon has presented at APIC National Conferences, the American Vascular Association Conference, and has provided educational programs on infection control topics for risk management groups and patient safety organizations, as well as for hospitals, long term care and ambulatory surgery systems. She has authored multiple infection prevention and control articles and is published in the Pennsylvania Patient Safety Authority Advisory and the American Journal of Infection Control. She holds a faculty position at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine as an Infection Prevention Lecturer.