

Marian Rodgers has a BS in Nursing from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, a MS in Nursing from the University of Texas in San Antonio, and an MPH from the Ohio State University. She first went into Infection Control in the Air Force in 1981. Since retirement from the Air Force, she practiced infection prevention and control in hospice care, public health, pediatrics, and since 2006 in the Veterans Administration. She is currently the MRSA Prevention Coordinator at the Dayton (Ohio) VA Medical Center. She has been Certified in Infection Control (CIC) since 1988.