REFERENCES

doi: 10.2466/PRo.1003.777-782

Consulting Psychologists Press.

doi: 10:1007/8F00794615

doi: 10.1002/smi.1217

O’Connell, B., Young, J., Books, J., Huchings, J., & Lofthouse. (2001). Nurses’ Perceptions of the nature and frequency of aggression in general ward settings and high dependency areas. Journal of Clinical Nursing, 9(4), 602-610. doi: 10 1046/j. 1365-2702. 2000.00401.x

Reflecting peer-support groups in the prevention of stress and burnout:
doi: 10.1111/j.1365-2648.2008.04743.x

mental health staff and safety in the work environment. Occupational Medicine, 55, 480-486. doi: 10.1093/occmed/kqi110

Investigation of the aftermath of trauma exposure. Journal of Anxiety Disorders, 22, 253-262. doi: 10.1016/j.janxdis2007.02.005

And meta-analysis of multiple-session early interventions following traumatic ajp.psychiatryonline.org

nurses: Prevalence, distribution, correlate predictors. Journal of Psychosocial Nursing and Mental Health Services, 41(4), 32-41. doi:
10.1097/01.QMH.0000326725.55460.af

Ruzek, J. I., Brymer, M. J., Jacobs, A. K. Layne, C. M., Vernberg, E. M., & Watson, 29, 17-47. Retrieved from